

TROY JOHNSON BIO

Troy is an author, writer and national TV host. For the last 10 years he's been the food writer for San Diego Magazine. In 2011 he wrote and hosted his first primetime TV series for Food Network ("Crave"), and has since been a judge on over 140 episodes of "Guy's Grocery Games" with Guy Fieri. He also co-hosts the food travel show "Campus Eats" on Big Ten Network, and has been featured as a food expert on "Iron Chef," "Best Thing I Ever Ate," and shows for Travel Channel, NatGeo, Cooking Channel, and PBS. His humor has been featured in CNN, Washington Post, Buzzfeed, Reader's Digest, and Funny or Die!. He lives in Ocean Beach, California, where he's finalizing his memoir about growing up with a gay parent before the gay rights movement took off. For booking, email troy@hey Troy Johnson.com.